INTERVENTION IN RHINE DISTRICT POSSIBILITY

CONGRESS CALLS ON PRESIDENT TO GIVE STATUS OF UNITED STATES SOLDIERS HELD IN THAT TERRITORY

RESOLUTION IS QUICKLY PASSED

WASHINGTON, March 25—With dispatches indicating that France will ask for Allied intervention in the "red revolution" in the Rhine district of Germany, Chairman Kahn of the House Military committee planned to call up in the House today his resolution asking the President for a definite statement as to the exact status of the 17,000 troops in the army of occupation. Many members of Congress believe that no action should be taken without its consent, unless of course, some German forces seek to gain control of the Allied zone.

WASHINGTON, March 25—The House today called on President Wilson for a definite statement on the exact status of the 17,000 American troops in Germany. In two minutes it unanimously passed the resolution of Representative Kahn, of California, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee asking that Congress be advised immediately under what conditions and under whose directions the troops can be used.

BAUER HEADS NEW GERMAN CABINET AGREEMENT REACHED IN THE WEST

LONDON, March 25—The new German cabinet was completed last mid-night according to a Berlin dispatch. Gustav Bauer is the new chancellor.

MAYENCE, Germany, March 25—Representatives of the government of President Ebert and the West German insurgents reached a final agreement according to advices here today. The terms of the agreement were that the government agrees to furnish the workers an army charged with maintaining order throughout the German industrial district and all participants in the recent coupe d'etat in Berlin be disarmed.

ESSEN, Westphalia, March 25—Leaders of the German red forces here today announced capture of Wesel, northwest of Essen. The red forces would not agree to an armistice.

U. S. MARINES PUT DOWN QUARREL BETWEEN CHINESE AND POLICEMEN

TOKIO, March 17, Delayed—American marines who landed at Kinking at the request of the British consul killed two Chinese coolies according to a report reaching here. They later withdrew at the request of the local authorities.

The British consul asked the marines to land to quell fighting between Chinese police and coolies according to the dispatch. Kinking is about 130 miles south of Hanko. It is a seaport and has a foreign settlement.

SLIGHT FIRE IN THIRD WARD WESTMORELAND PRAISES DRY LAW

Fire which started from a defective flue, and which broke out at noon today, damaged the roof of the residence at corner of Clearfield and Weaver streets, which is owned by Frank Urey and occupied by T. N. Fulton and family.

The firemen quickly responded to the alarm, but neighbor Jim Lafferty, formerly chief of the Gobbler's Knob fire department of Fulton county, with several others, hustled up onto the roof and had the flames under control when the fire trucks arrived. Loss about $50.

PURCHASED VALUABLE BUSINESS PROPERTY

Joseph Littman, proprietor of the Ladies' Bazaar, has closed the deal whereby he becomes the owner of the old Clearfield National Bank building on Second street, now occupied by Tobias Bros' grocery and Fisher's confectionery store. The property was purchased from John Dimeling and Dean H. Bloom.

Mr. Littman, who now occupies the old Harder store room, owned by the County National Bank, will remove his store thereto just as soon as the repairs are completed.

GREENSBURG, March 25. (United Press.)—Jail commitments in Westmoreland county during January and February were smaller than any previous period for the past ten years, according to statistics. January 1920 found 31 prisoners admitted, while in 1919 commitments totaling 121 were issued. 33 were imprisoned in February of this year, while 1919 found 104 incarcerated.

PEA-SPROUTS IN CHILD'S NOSE

SUNBURY, March 25. (United Press.)—Suffering for a number of weeks from what seemed to be beatings in the head, three-year old Helen Haip, of this city, when examined a few days ago, was found to be suffering from the sprouts of a pea that had been lodged in the nose. It was believed the pea had been lodged in the child's nose last summer, and when the examination was made, the sprouts had grown one-half and one-quarter inches long.

Mrs. J. M. Roth, of Curwensville, was shopping in our stores yesterday.

REWARD OFFERED FOR DESPOILERS OF DRIVING PARK

Vandals, hoodlums or plain thieves have caused considerable damage and destruction at the Clearfield Park during the past fall and winter and the Park Association is very justly angry over the depredations of these despicable marauders.

They authorize the publication of the following with a view to a possible apprehending of the culprits: $10.00 Reward for information which will make known the person or persons who broke a sash and window lights in the main exhibition building also cut and took away all of the porcelain sockets in the poultry building, also committing nuisances and destroying other property. The park is owned by 135 citizens of Clearfield whose sole aim is to make the grounds and buildings a pleasure place for everybody and any person knowing the above offenders would be doing only a just duty to help preserve the park property.

Clearfield Park Association. Similar depredations have been committed at the park before and the officers of the association are determined to see that justice is meted out to the offenders to the fullest extent of the law if they can be apprehended.

Suspicion points strongly to three young men who will no doubt receive an invitation from a justice of the peace to call and face the music just as soon as a few details in the story in the hands of the association officers can be worked out and corroborated.

Thus far repeated warnings have been given against such things as those enumerated above and now the law's aid will be invoked in order to protect the people's property.

FOX HUNTER FINDS DEAD ELK BUT DEER WINTERED VERY WELL

W. P. Carns, who spent the major portion of the past six weeks at the camp of the Stone Run Hunting and Fishing Club on the headwaters of Stone and Lick Run, came to town the first of the week. He was fox hunting the greater part of the time while in the mountains and managed to get about over a great deal of territory the past two weeks. He says he found that the deer and pheasants got through the long, severe winter in good shape and that the woods in that region are literally alive with deer, and there are more pheasants than have been found in the spring heretofore for several years.

Mr. Carns also ran onto the remains of one of those tragedies incident to a hard winter in the woods. He found the carcass of a cow elk lying on what is known as Lucky Point on Lick Run, just beyond the north boundary of the Kennedy park game reserve. This elk had no doubt been caught on the point by a heavy snow fall and yarded up by herself in a place where there was not sufficient food in sight to last her through the long winter.

The elk in its effort to get food had tramped around in a circle over a considerable distance and had eaten the twigs and brush off as far as she could reach, some of the chewed stumps remaining being of the thickness of a man's wrist. The elk had been reduced to mere skin and bones by her effort to keep alive but was forced to succumb to the rigors of the winter. There was about four feet of snow at this point.

FAREWELL PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wigley were delightfully surprised at their country home near Clover Hill Wednesday evening, when about a hundred young and old people gathered there to bid them a farewell before they retire to their new city home in Clearfield. The evening was most enjoyably spent in dancing and playing games. Enchanting music was furnished by a three piece orchestra. Delicious refreshments were served at a late hour, after which everyone departed for their homes, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Wigley never-ending happiness in their new environment.

Frank Thompson and daughter Miss Helen were shopping in Altoona today.

LITTLE GIRL SERIOUSLY INJURED

Miss Judy, little 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Leslie Wallace, met with a very serious accident shortly after the noon hour today. The little lady was endeavoring to bring her bicycle down from the attic at her home on Pine street, when she slipped and fell, the bicycle tumbling down on top of her.

Little Miss Judy was wearing spectacles and in falling she struck her eye presumably on the bicycle, crushing one of the lenses of her glasses and forcing the broken fragments into her eye.

She was removed at once to the Clearfield Hospital for treatment, and it is feared the eye is so badly injured it will have to be removed.

WILL DELIVER ANNIVERSARY ADDRESS

Deputy Attorney General William I. Swoope went to Wilkensburg today where he is scheduled to deliver the principal address at the ceremonies incident to the celebration of the Tenth anniversary of Wilkensburg Lodge of Elks.

BREAKING GROUND FOR NEW BRICK PLANT AT BARRETT

A crew of workmen have already begun to prepare the ground for the erection of the big new fire brick yard of the Mt. Union Refractories Company at Barrett, about midway between Woodland and Clearfield.

The Mt. Union people purchased this site for their brick plant early last fall, exclusive mention of which was made in The Progress at the time. The ground was surveyed and plotted but the work of building the plant was suspended during the winter. Now that gentle spring is just around the corner the work of preparing the ground for the starting of work upon the foundations has already been begun.

The new plant, which will make fire brick and shapes exclusively will be 200 feet square and when completed and in operation will employ more than two hundred men and boys. The equipment will be of the latest and best to be procured and this plant will be of very great business advantage to both Clearfield and Woodland.

The site chosen is right at Barrett station on ground purchased from the John M. Troxell estate.

Clearfield people will take more than ordinary interest in the new works from the fact that one of the moving spirits and principal officers in the Mt. Union Refractories company is C. V. Hackman, a native Clearfielder who has made a signal success in the brick business at Mt. Union and elsewhere and he and his business associates, who are careful, successful business men will be gladly welcomed to Clearfield.

The Mt. Union people purchased the Brott farm, immediately adjoining the piece secured from the Troxell heirs and also have large clay and coal holdings in the immediate vicinity and at several other easily accessible points in this region. They have drilled their properties and have everything mapped and plotted.

They expect to operate at once a large body of fire clay near Curwensville and it is said have in contemplation the building of a three or four mile narrow gauge or tramroad from the Morgan Run country to Barrett for the hauling of their clay and coal in that section to the plant.

COMPLAINTS POUR INTO P. S. C. ON PHONE RATE BOOST

HARRISBURG, March 24.—Public hearing on the question of the proposed increase in rates by the Bell Telephone Company will be conducted just as soon as possible after protests have been filed, the Public Service Commission announced Monday night following an executive session at which it discussed informally the proposed rates.

All day protests of informal character arrived in the mails, but so far no formal complaint has been received. Members of the commission frankly say they expect a large number of formal complaints.

It was suggested following the session that if complaints of a formal nature are to be filed that be sent here prior to the effective date for the increases in toll and rental rates, April 21 and May 1 respectively. Otherwise the burden of proof will be placed on the complainants. If the complaints arrive before the effective dates the burden of proof is on the company to show that its rates are equitable and just.

The local protest against the big H. & C. rate jump will be got in shape at the next meeting of council, on Monday, April 5.

Mayor Chase and the different Borough officials have been in conference several times with Borough Solicitor Urey, who is looking into the legal propositions involved and will have the protest in shape for proper action when council meets.

The franchise ordinance under which the Bell Telephone Company operates in Clearfield also restricts the maximum price or charge for telephones to $18 for house phones and $20 for business phones.

Miss Vivian Livingston, who has been visiting her parents, left today for Bucknell University, where she will resume her studies.

DESPERATE BATTLE BEING WAGED TO PUT SUFFRAGE OVER IN DELAWARE

DOVER, Del., March 25—Final action by the Delaware legislature on ratification of Woman's Suffrage was expected today. The suffragists held out hope that the votes would favor the suffrage act. Governor Townsend stated early today he believed the amendment would be ratified. Anti-suffragists were confident the ratification bill would be defeated. Hearings were to be given on both sides at the joint session of the Legislature today United States Senator Sterling of South Dakota and McKellar of Tennessee, were to speak in favor of ratification.

THOS. W. LAWSON CHARGED WITH USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD INVESTORS

He said he had been warned his "business activities" would be attacked if he did not withdraw from the race.

FIRE DESTROYED 10,792 ACRES GROWING TIMBER

HARRISBURG, March 25.—Forest fires destroyed 10,792 acres of growing timber in Clearfield county last year, according to a report issued here Tuesday by Gifford Pinchot, Commissioner of the Pennsylvania Department of Forestry. The estimated damage to the burned area amounted to $3,199.00, and George H. Wirt, chief forest fire warden, received reports of 36 fires in that territory.

Commissioner Pinchot will wage a determined fight against fires in the forests of Clearfield county this spring. During the dangerous period, the full strength of the State's forest fire-fighting force will be thrown into the woods to protect the timberland. Experiments will be made with wireless telephones to determine their value in summoning help to check fires, Pennsylvania's new forester said.

"The first big job of the Pennsylvania Department of Forestry is to control forest fires. What fires actually burn is a small matter compared to what they prevent from growing. Because they keep between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 acres in Pennsylvania from producing lumber, our people have to import from other states nearly all they use at a yearly cost for freight alone of more than $25,000,000."

LIQUOR DEALERS STILL HOPING

PHILADELPHIA, March 25 (United Press.)—Hope that the constitutional prohibition amendment will be declared void or that Congress will amend the Volstead enforcement act to permit the sale of beer and light wines is still being entertained by liquor dealers here. Fifteen hundred and sixty holders of retail licenses have paid into the city treasury the monthly installment license fee for March. One hundred and seventy-three wholesalers made payment.

GREENSBURG TO FORM HOUSING COMMITTEE

GREENSBURG, March 25. (United Press.)—A stock concern prepared to $500,000 in new homes for workingmen in this city, will be organized by the Rotary Club, in an effort to relieve the congestion. Difficulty in securing workmen for new enterprises here led to the step.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

The pupils of the Junior High School will give an entertainment at the High School Auditorium tomorrow evening, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. The play to be given is entitled "In a Flower Garden," and one hundred and thirty of the pupils will take part. Eighty of the pupils will be costumed to represent a flower garden, while a chorus of fifty voices will assist in the play.

The play was written by Edith M. Burrows, and the music is by W. Rhys Herbert.

The play represents one day in the life of the flowers of the garden. They are awakened by the bird voices, given a drink by the Dew, they play with the sunbeams and then greet the Dawn. Fair Weather comes and brings with her the Little White Clouds. Butterflies visit the flowers and then Noon arrives. While whisper to the flowers of the approach of the Storm Clouds and Rain, the enemies of Fair Weather and the Little White Clouds. The latter are driven away for awhile, but soon return with the Rainbow. Then Sunset and Dark visit the flowers, who are finally lulled to sleep by the Fireflies.

The costumed actors and actresses faithfully portray each character, and with the pleasing changes, combine in an interesting and highly entertaining evening's performance.

The proceeds will be devoted to the Library Fund of Junior High.

READING MAN DIVIDES A MILLION

READING, March 25. (United Press.)—More than a million dollars is divided in the will of Frank C. Smink, late president of the Reading Iron company, filed for probate here today.

The estate consists entirely of personal property. It divides that $999,000 in gold be set aside and securities and the interest be payable to the widow semi-annually. At the time of her demise the money and securities are to be sold and divided among the four children, Harry Smink, Mrs. Augustus Heim, Mrs. J. Bennett Molan, and Mrs. G. Howard Knight.

The only bequests outside of the family are made to Mr. Smink's barber, Harry Gibson, and to his colored barber, Randolph Terry.

DOESN'T NEED ANY LAXATIVES NOW

Mr. Becker says life is a joy, without constipation or stomach trouble.

"I had catarrh of the stomach and head for three years. My stomach was so bad that every time I ate anything sweet, such as fruit or pastry, the burning hot water would run out of my mouth. I took a laxative every night. Since taking Milk's Emulsion, my bowels move regularly. I have now taken ten bottles and have gained 15½ pounds. All my friends remark how fine I am looking, and it seems a pleasure to live again without stomach trouble."—Bert Becker, 3121 Ohio.

Physicians usually make slaves out of their users, and weaken the bowels instead of correcting them. Stomach trouble in many cases is directly due to constipation.

Milk's Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milk's Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose weakness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in restoring and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milk's Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 40c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milk's Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere. Guaranteed by Stewart's Drug Store.

GIRLS NOT LIARS JUST FIBBERS IS VIEW OF CANON

(By United Press.)
LONDON, March 22. (By Mail.)—The feminine of "liar" is "fibber."

That's why women make better liars than men.

It sounds paradoxical, but Canon Peter Green says it is so. He was addressing the Liverpool Police Court on Juvenile Crime.

"A criminal boy," he said, "is silly. A criminal girl is worse. There is nothing to equal a girl who has got off the right track. Bad boys tell lies which can be spotted, but girls lie connectedly, circumstantially, and in a most interesting and probable manner, which takes infinite knowledge and wisdom to discover. The crimes of boy offenders convince me that their offenses are the outcome of not badness, but silliness and ambivalence."

Canon Green ascribes this difference between boy perverters and girls of the same ilk, to the gentler criticism meted out to the frail sex.

"If a boy at school is found out in a deception he is proclaimed a liar, and boys are trained from early days to despise liars. The term is deemed too harsh for feminine offenders, and the most they are ever found out in is a 'fib.' Girls will continue to fib light-heartedly, with never a blush when they are found out. This becomes a habit. And girls fib so efficiently that before long they are convinced of the truth of their own untruths and will add to a story with limitless imagination, never once paralyzing the yarn, until it reaches a perfectly plausible and possible finish."

Big Eaters Get Kidney Trouble

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your back hurts or bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must constantly guard against kidney trouble, because we eat too much, and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

Rev. Fletcher Biddle has returned from the Harrisburg Methodist Conference. He will preach in the Methodist church on Sunday morning and evening, being his farewell sermons to the people of this charge. He goes to York, where the salary is a much larger one than was paid to him here, the parsonage also is much better and more comfortable than the one he has occupied for the year past. While some of his members objected to his being returned to this charge, the larger proportion of his congregation would have been pleased to have had him returned for another year. During his ministry in this community, Mr. Biddle did excellent church work, and during the winter months conducted one of the most successful revival services held by the Methodist people of this place for years, by which the membership was increased by over a half hundred young people. He is a true minister of the gospel and preached Christ and Him crucified with such force that it "rubbed the fur the wrong way on the backs of some of those who have their names on the membership roll." By his removal at this time Curwensville loses an upright citizen and a conscientious minister of the gospel, while the town of York will be the gainer thereby. His host of friends, inside and outside of his church, join in wishing him the success he so justly deserves in his new field of labor.

Charles Patton has plotted and will have surveyed off in lots shortly, a small tract of land lying this side of the Harry Fleming property near Nantuxton. The location for house building is a good and desirable one, and the lots will be sold at a price within the reach of every laboring man. This is no profiteering scheme, but a straight business proposition to those who desire to build their own homes.

Fred Robison has purchased and added another press to his job office outfit. He already had two presses, but as business has increased to such an extent, he found that it was necessary to add this third piece of machinery. He is working on an order now which calls for a half million van.

There seems to be no ordinance, (if there is it is not enforced) against roller skating and running of coaster wagons on the sidewalks. Every eve, the sidewalks are taken up with these two most annoying amusements, much to the detriment of the pedestrians, as the kids seem to have the idea that they must have the right of way when the play is on, and that everybody must keep out of their way. A number of complaints have been made to the proper authorities, but it seems that the policeman does not pay very much attention to putting a stop to the nuisance.

Eggs are on the drop, at least they were yesterday. The writer saw a farmer attempting to get out of a wagon backward, having in one hand a basket which contained six dozen eggs. His foot accidentally caught on the back bar of the wagon and threw him to the sidewalk, and in falling he dropped his precious hen fruit. When the sulphurous smoke had floated skyward, and he examined the contents of his basket, he found that he had saved four whole eggs. We will not vouch for his church membership.

Fred Young, who was taken to the Clearfield Hospital last Friday for an operation, is reported as getting along nicely.

What Curwensville wants, and badly, at that, is one hundred or more new tenement houses. There is not enough houses in town to accommodate our present population. What is going to become of the people who will want to move to Curwensville when those large industries are put in operation?

DEATH OF THE PEACE TREATY

The peace treaty died in the Congressional hospital, as a result of an incompetent diagnosis and a disagreement of doctors. Some considered it best to amputate; some to purge; others would graft, and while the patient was undergoing all manner of rough handling its vitality was exhausted to the extent that it was declared incurable. Now the cause of death is being sought, and the searchers after light are wearing smoked glasses.

All the world, except the United States, is at peace with Germany, but America wanted no European-made contract to keep the peace. As the matter stands today we are not a party to the league of nations or to the peace of the world. On Monday March 22, a bill was introduced into Congress proposing a separate peace between the United States and Germany. That leaves us out of the circle, and to get in we will have to be initiated in due form. The question before the nation today is: "Who is to blame for the defeat of the treaty," and how much has the popularity of Henry Cabot Lodge increased because of his efforts to prevent its ratification?

CIVIL WAR IN GERMANY

Germany, in the throes of Civil war, her capital an armed camp, her food supply menaced, and more than 8,000 of her citizens slain in one week, since the breaking out of the revolt on March 13th, is realizing what it means to instill into the minds of a people the questionable dogmas of bolshevism.

Germany inoculated Russia with a subtle virus that destroyed her armies and ruined her people. Germany is directly responsible for the horrors that have dyed the pages of Russian history with the blood of millions of her misguided people, and that she is now reaping the reward of her perfidy is but a just retribution.

The situation is serious in the extreme and it will not be a surprise to the well-informed to see Germany consuming her own vitals, after the manner of bolshevism.

The higher intelligence of the German people may save them from the horrors that have consumed Russia, but all signs point to a greater bloodshed, and to a greater upheaval among the contending elements of Germanic social economy than has ever before shaken the very foundations of German institutions.

The teacher had spent twenty minutes impressing on her pupils the correct pronunciation of the word "case." The following morning she wanted to find out if the children remembered, so she turned to one little boy suddenly and demanded: "What do you see on the mantelpiece at home, Jackie?" "Father's feet, miss!" came the prompt reply.

The society of Quakers received that name originally because they bade certain magistrates to "tremble at the word of the Lord."

Civilization in Korea.

History for many years B. C. tells us that the people of Korea were among the highest in genuine civilization. About the year 137 a general by the name of Li built the first iron fleet, composed of wooden circular vessels with iron plates on top, studded with iron teeth. Because of the prosperity of the Korean nation, Japan was extremely jealous, and had therefore brought 700 boats in battle array. However, Li, with his 50 boats, succeeded in inflicting a disastrous defeat upon the Japanese.

Making Chlorophyll.

Chlorophyll is the green coloring matter common to growing plants. Take a handful of parsley and triturate in a mortar with enough alcohol (65 per cent) to cover the mass. Decant the green liquid and allow it to evaporate spontaneously. The chlorophyll remains as an intensely green substance. This may be used to color candies and as cake icings, says the Electrical Experimenter.

India Tea Chests.

The total number of tea chests required for the Indian tea crop is between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000. The timber required for tea chests is of a very special kind. It must contain no sap that would rot the tea leaf in which the tea is packed, must be free from any odor, as tea will take this up readily, and must be well seasoned, as the tea is usually kept when packed, and unseasoned wood will warp. Examination has shown that suitable timber exists in India in large quantities.

PITTSBURGH MEN OF AFFAIRS WILL VISIT CLEARFIELD IN MAY

Clearfield will be visited by the trade extension excursionists of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, Wednesday, May 26th, on the golden rule tour which the Pittsburgh business men will make through sixteen cities and towns in central and north-western Pennsylvania. A special Pullman train will arrive here at 12:45 p. m. and will remain one hour and forty-five minutes. President George S. Oliver, of the Chamber of Commerce has appointed prominent business men in Clearfield county, who are non-resident members of the Pittsburgh Chamber, as a special committee to attend the reception in Clearfield.

"The golden rule excursion will be for manufacturers, importers, large wholesale jobbers, bankers and large general agencies," said Chairman Sipe. "This will not be an excursion, mark that. We are not going out with competitors of the business men of our neighboring cities and towns. Neither is this to be a selling expedition. Our trade extension trips never are. We are going first of all, to discuss measures how we can mutually increase business between Pittsburgh and the neighboring communities; how we can serve them best, and how, between us, we may obtain better transportation facilities and build up business for the whole western end of the state. Retailers and those who would be competitors of the business men of the towns to be visited will not have a part in the movement."

"We are much obliged by the courteous and enthusiastic manner in which the committee's announcement has been received," said Vice-Chairman Sam F. Sipe. "We know that Pittsburgh manufacturers and importers would show unusual interest in our nineteenth excursion, but the word that comes to us from the good people of our visiting list in 1920—that is what stirs our hearts and makes us proud of Pittsburgh for Pittsburgh's sake, and for Pittsburgh business men's steadfast adherence to the principles of the golden rule."

The members of the trade extension committee are: Harry W. Neely, Sam F. Sipe, J. Howard Arthur, George A. Buse, Harry Dangelberg, W. J. Golder, G. Brown Hill, F. W. Hughes, W. P. Jend, W. B. Jones, T. L. Rose, William C. Shuck, Thomas E. Walters, C. E. Wilbar and Lawrence C. Woods.

Ladies! Darken
Your Gray Hair

Look years younger! Use Grandmother's recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur and nobody will know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wych's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Where All Could See.

My most embarrassing moment was experienced at an evening church wedding a short time ago. As we were late, most of the seats had been taken, so it was necessary to go almost to the front row. I sat down and calmly removed my hat, when to my mortification my escort asked if I thought I was at the movies. The hat was hurriedly adjusted, but I felt self-conscious during the entire ceremony. — Chicago Tribune.

THORN BROSTWO PRECIOUS JEWELS—THE FIRST KISS AND THE FIRST LAUGH

Of all the fine characterizations which marks Constance Binney's screen creation of Barnabette, the forlorn little heroine of "Erstwhile Susan," perhaps the two highest points are reached when she depicts the girl on the occasions of her first kiss and her first laugh. Here are the two rarest and most-to-be-treasured moments in the life of any girl budding into the flower of maturity, and Miss Binney fairly carries the spectator away by the finesse and reality of these moments in "Erstwhile Susan," her first picture as a motion-picture star, and which will be shown at the Liberty Theatre tonight.

The preciousness of these two events was emphasized in the case of Barnabette, since she had lost her mother at birth and the drudgery, imposed upon her by a stern father and two loutish brothers left neither time nor inclination for laughing or kissing.

When her father married again, he chose Juliet Miller—erstwhile Susan—because she seemed properly meek and had a tidy little fortune; but Juliet surprised them all. She became absolute mistress of the house and turned the old order topsy-turvy. Most important of all, however, was the change she effected in Barnabette's life. It was the stepmother who gave Barnabette the first kiss she ever received; it was the stepmother too, who taught Barnabette how to laugh.

Constance Binney brings to the screen not only rare beauty, wisdom, wholesomeness and a high degree of artistry and talent, but what is of far greater value—every charm that has made the American girl pre-eminent throughout the world.

The Chinese were the first to use paper for decorating or covering the walls of rooms. The Dutch are supposed to have introduced the use of wall paper into Europe in the sixteenth century. Trials of Matrimony.

We were stopping at a hotel, while on our honeymoon, and were trying to hide the fact that we were newlyweds. We succeeded quite well until dinner time. Just as we had reached the center of the big dining hall, a tea stood up on her chair and shouted, "Which one is the bride, mamma?" Every one then knew, by my telltale blushing, that it was I—a most embarrassed bride.—Chicago Tribune.

Red Hair Unpopular.

Red hair, however unjustly, is still associated with deceit, and, in Ireland and Scotland, with ill luck as well. In the highlands he who meets a red-haired woman when starting on a journey will be well advised, say the wisemen, to return home and start the journey afresh; and in Ireland red-haired people are supposed to exercise the same baneful influence upon any undertaking.

PAULA'S WAY

By AGNES G. BROGAN.

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

Paula, drawing the curtains of her studio window on a rainy evening, looked down with a wistful smile into the street. Her tall lonely neighbor was striding along through the storm to the house doorway, his soft hat shedding tiny rivulets of water, various paper bundles beneath one arm betokening his bachelor supper.

The girl turned with a sigh to the cozy comfort of her womanly appointed room, the rose-colored light of the shaded lamp, the blazing logs on the hearth—of what had been an old-time mansion.

Now the great house was given over to workers in the world of business, a doctor's office here, a dentist's there, and on this particular high floor, studios of various kinds.

Paula's own particular realm was a "music studio." She had come to the teeming city with high ambition. She would be one of the great musicians of the day—and now little Paula had grown to be content with her lot as humble instructor.

The classes which came at regular hours provided her with this small home and the necessities of life, and though the career of brilliant promise faded, still there was much to bring her joy. She loved every child who climbed the steep stairs to receive her instruction. She loved the old Irish woman who came to clean up mornings. Paula had even a smile for the crotchety janitor.

Every soul in the old building loved Paula, so how could the young illustrator escape who moved in across the hall? After he realized the intense enjoyment the girl's society gave him, Jack Lanse determinedly denied himself from it. Who was he, in his self-imposed poverty, that he might seriously care for any woman? Marriage was as hopeless in his present circumstances as his chosen career was proving to be.

It was just as his shrewd, tiresome old uncle had prophesied—if Jack persisted in depending upon his drawings as a means of livelihood he would be disappointed. Jack was disappointed; but still doggedly determined in his profession. He would be an illustrator. He knew that it was in him, so the proffered place in his uncle's business concern was refused, and Jack himself brought to the cold reality of self-prepared meals in a sky-lighted room.

His room looked unusually cheerless this rainy evening as he flung wide the door, when suddenly an opposite door opened and in the lamplight stood the girl, against whom he had resolved to close his heart.

"Poor Jackie!" she said whimsically, "all wet and cold. You'd better come in by my fire while yours is heating up. And tell me, my Jack today?"

"Thanks," Jack began stiffly. "I will be all right here—"

"You won't," interrupted Paula decidedly, "and I can't afford to let you run the risk of taking cold. Who would look after you if you were sick? No one but me—and I'm too busy."

"Paula, Paula!" murmured Jack tenderly, and smiled as he yielded.

"There might be an opening with Brown's Magazine," he told her, seated before the blazing logs, "if I could keep things going until I get my start. Jove! if only one would give me a part of that luck before he dies. I'm in for the whole thing, you know, and I'm not wishing on dead men. But now—"

Paula nodded understandingly.

"I know," she said, "it's like old Aunt Riah. I'm to be Aunt Riah's heir some day. In the meantime she ignores my existence and I have to play scales for my dinner."

The man rose abruptly.

"Paula," he said, "I'm going to give up this striving for—what I thought I wanted most in the world. You see, I want you now more than any career; I'm going to work."

"Don't," the girl begged of him. "Wait, Jackie, wait—awhile. I can't let you give up such promise. You've got to succeed with your talent."

For days after it was the girl who avoided her lover. The Irish woman told Jack at last that Paula had gone away. She would be back, she said, very soon. Then it was that the unbelievable happened. To Jack came an order for five thousand dollars signed by his uncle's solicitor.

The lawyer stated that the donor wished to remain unknown. Jack chuckled gleefully. This was his uncle's way, he reflected, of silently yielding the point.

Jack could scarcely wait for Paula's return, and when she came, his imperious wooing brushed all objection aside.

They were married in the "musical studio" with the old Irish woman and the grim janitor as witnesses.

When it was all over Paula lifted her happy face to meet the rapt joy of her husband's eyes.

"Dear," she said, "how you will have to forgive me. That money did not come from your uncle. It came—through Aunt Riah's will. She left me her money as she promised, Jackie, and when I went away it was to attend papa's funeral. Your uncle's lawyer and I arranged the matter together."

He seemed to understand that this money of mine would be a favor which your papa had would not so long. Now you can't give me up, Jackie," Paula said. And Paula was right.

DON'T NEGLECT THE LITTLE ONES

A snuffling, sneezing, coughing child certainly is a reflection upon the parents. To permit a child to suffer from a cold is more than negligence; it is cruel. A cold that hangs on weakens the system and can easily turn into something serious. Mrs. J. S. Pitson, 376 E. L. St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I can't speak too highly of Foley's Honey and Tar. When my little girl has a cold I give her Foley's Honey and Tar and that stops her coughing in a little while. Children like it. It contains no opiates."

The Humble Part.

In imperishable characters there will be inscribed on the success roll of honor names unfamiliar to most of us, the names of those who performed noble humble parts in life; the noble sufferers—some blind, some crippled or handicapped by the loss of hands or feet, or tortured by incurable diseases—who with a fortitude equal to that of the martyrs of old, took up life's burdens and bravely made the most of the powers and opportunities bestowed upon them by the Almighty. —From "Ambition and Success" by Orison Swett Marden.

SUBJECTS TO TWO BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS

Frank Cimo, who has very ill at the Clearfield Hospital, owes a debt of ever-lasting gratitude to Sam Accoridino, and Mr. Accoridino has set a fine example to mankind in general, by his act of acts of generosity in behalf of Mr. Cimo. A week or so ago it became apparent that Mr. Cimo was weakening and needed new blood. Mr. Accoridino presented himself, with ten others and a blood test was made, which showed that of all the number answering the call, he alone had the proper blood corpuscles to give health and strength to Mr. Cimo. Mr. Accoridino submitted to the blood transfusion and Mr. Cimo immediately showed signs of recovery. Three days later, it was necessary to perform some surgical work on the patient, and Mr. Accoridino again gave of his life's fluid. The condition of Mr. Cimo's health is much improved as a result of Mr. Accoridino's kind and heroic sacrifice. Should Mr. Cimo need more assistance, he will find none of his countrymen ready to respond to his needs.

THE PROBLEM

By JULIA A. ROBINSON.

(Copyright, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Nanette trudged wearily home after her day's work—that is, she went to her small room in a lodging house. She was tired, and a little discouraged, for the day had been a hard one. She stopped on the first floor to pay the rent for the following week, for she might oversleep in the morning and not have time to see the landlady before going to work; then she would run the risk of losing her room. She always cringed when she paid out those precious dollars; it took so long to earn them, and so much hard work! Then it was that the great blow came.

"From now on it'll be 50 cents more a week," announced the landlady blandly, not noticing the shock to the girl. "Everything's gone up," she went on.

Nanette gasped, but dared not say a word. How often she had heard that same story. "Everything's gone up!" dreading the result. Now it had come, and what was she to do? Had not things gone up for her as well? Who was to help her on her expenses? She had no one to fall back upon and demand more money of them to meet the high prices for everything she must buy. It was the way they all did, and she dared not protest.

Wearily the girl paid the extra half dollar and mounted the stairs to her lodgings. Somehow, the little room that she had tried to make beautiful with her own simple bric-a-brac, had lost its attraction for her. It no longer looked homelike. She sank into a chair and burst into tears. Everything looked dark before her. "I don't know what I'm going to do!" she wailed. "I was paying the limit before, I shall have to go without clothes."

How could she pay the rent and have enough to eat to keep her health on her small salary? They would turn her off if she complained. The world was very cruel. What was the use of living, anyway?

An hour later John came. He had not called for a long time and Nanette was afraid he had forgotten. She brightened up, brushed the tears from her face, and went down to meet him. Perhaps he would take her to the movies; that would help her to forget.

But John was not thinking of the movies. They walked out to the river bank. Moonlight streamed across the river. Passers-by chatted gaily, but John was glum and silent, not at all like himself.

"No, I'm not going to the movies," he growled, when Nanette dared the suggestion. "Couldn't stand 'em tonight."

"Why not? What ails you, John? I thought you liked the movies."

"How can you expect a hungry man to enjoy the movies or anything else?" he growled.

"Hungry? Why, John, you're not hungry, really?"

"Yes, I am."

"But didn't you have your supper?"

"What's the matter with you?"

"Matter enough, I should say!" he stormed. "When a man can't get a decent meal anywhere in the city! You pay all creation and don't get what's fit to eat, and not half enough of it. I'm tired of it."

"Oh, John, it's too bad!" she sympathized. "I was down in the dumps, too, when you came because Mrs. Stokes has raised my rent, and everything costs so much. I confess I go hungry myself sometimes. What are we going to do with such prices?"

John whistled. "That's the problem, and a hard one, too!"

They sat silent for a long time, staring at the ground, too much cast down to talk. Suddenly John asked: "Can you make an omelette, Nanette?"

Nanette laughed. "Why, I used to make them at home. I think I could now, if I had fresh eggs, and a stove to cook them on."

"And a little house to put the stove in," he added. "That's just it, Nanette. It's a home we need. What's the use of dragging on in this way, paying out all your money and having nothing to show for it. Let's go to housekeeping, you and I. We'll have a little house somewhere where we can keep a few hens and have a few green things growing to eat. We can save money, have a good time—and have enough to eat at last!"

He had grown enthusiastic, but Nanette was silent. She had never imagined being wooed in quite that way. It seemed very practical and homely just to be thinking of eating. She wanted love and romance—but then, John was hungry and she pitied him. Yet she would not yield at once. Her woman's coquetry came to her aid.

"Oh, you want me just for your cook, do you?" she retorted. "Can't you hire some one else for a cook, John?"

He saw the fun lurking in her eyes and began to understand. "There! I'm a brute," he cried. "I confess this does not sound much like love-making, but it is and I mean it. Leaving the eating and the practical part out of the question I want you, Nanette. I love you. I've loved you for a long time, but I thought I must wait till I had a pile of money before I told you so. I thought we ought to have enough to begin in style before we got married, but couldn't we begin on just a little, dear? We'd be so much more comfortable—and so happy!" He twinkled. "And have plenty to eat, John!"

Then he caught her in his arms and kissed her, and the romance which meant so much to both began.

Even Wither on, a business man of DuBois, attended to business on Tuesday.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE ADMIRALTY BEAR.

"My name sounds so superior and so high up," said the Admiralty Bear, growling proudly.

"Yes," he continued, "it is almost as high up a sounding name as any I can think of. It is a good match for any name, such as general or colonel or king or president or premier. And I am glad to tell the animals about it."

The Admiralty bear went on growling and this was what he said:

"There are princes and there are princesses, but they are not nearly so fine as bears. They can talk and chatter, they can laugh and slug, perhaps, but they can't growl."

"Growling is such a superior thing to be able to do. It's far finer than being able to sing."

"Of course there are doubtless creatures who may disagree with me. There are always some creatures who will disagree with one."

"And there are some who will disagree with two or even four."

"But I do not bother about them; I don't pay attention to their opinions. I don't have to with a name like mine."

"These children who come to the zoo aren't named as I am. They're just called Billy and Susy and Johnnie and Teddy and Jane and Sally. They're not called Admiralty Sally, or King Johnnie, or Prince Teddy, or Queen Jane, or Princess Susy, or Premier Billy. No; not a bit of it."

"That's where I have it over them. And by that I mean that's one place where I have something which they haven't. Not that I mind their having things—gracious no. I'm not selfish, but still I am proud of my name."

"That is quite all right too. Many fine creatures are proud of their name. Maybe the family has been famous, maybe there have been fine people in it and the others are so proud that they have the same name."

"Or maybe there have been wise men in the family, or lovely ladies, or angelic children and the others are glad to have the same name."

"That is quite all right, I consider, for I am proud of my family name. I am glad I belong to the great family known as the Admiralty Bear family."

"The reason I have been given such a name is not really such as one might think it would be."

"It is not—no, I will have to admit it—it is not because I am an admiral. That is certainly not the case. No; I'm a bear and I live on land and an admiral is a fine man who commands boats which sail on the sea."

"He doesn't live on the sea or in the sea like a fish but admiral and the sea sound something alike, you must admit."

"The reason I was given my name is because I come from Admiralty Island, far up in Alaska."

"Oh, is that the reason?" asked the Grizzly Bear near by. "I have often wondered why you had such a name."

"Yes, that is the reason, and it is the reason my family have been given the same name," said the Admiralty bear.

"You see," he continued, "we've wandered in other places, we've traveled and all that, but we were first found on that island I told you of far up in Alaska."

"I see," said the Grizzly bear. "I see a fine brown color as far as our fur is concerned, and the fur of a bear is always a pretty important part."

"As important as the clothes of any boy or girl," said the Grizzly bear.

"In fact," said the Admiralty bear, "more important. Our fur is as important to us as a child's fat or thinness or skin or flesh, or whatever you wish to call it, is to the child."

"That's so," laughed the Grizzly bear.

"But what gives me such joy is my name, my fine, superior leader-like sort of a name," ended the Admiralty bear, shaking his head.

Word Is Menacing.

There is something almost menacing in the word "homeless." A homeless dog is such a wretched creature that one would have to be hard-hearted not to pity him. If some of you girls should stop to think of what is implied by the word homeless, you would perhaps be more appreciative of your homes, even though they are modest ones.—Girls' Companion.

The teacher was giving the class a natural history lecture on Australia. "There's one animal," she said, "none of you have mentioned. It does not stand up on its legs all the time. It does not walk like other animals, but takes funny little skips. What is it?"

"And the class yelled with one voice: 'Charlie Chaplin.'"

BECK STORY EXAGGERATED

B. T. Owens, who is now located at Weadville, in Elk county, was a Clearfield visitor yesterday. Mr. Owens is Superintendent of the mines at that place, and asked to have corrected the story recently published in the DuBois papers concerning L. C. Beck, of Galtner's Hill. Six of Mr. Beck's children died of diphtheria and the article which appeared in The Progress, stated that he had become insane on account of his bereavement, accentuated because of his isolation and from the fact that he was said to have been forced to dig the graves for all six of the children.

Blake said this story was untrue, and though the Beck children did die of the dread disease, the family was ministered to by the neighbors as best they could, under the circumstances; that he himself had visited the home at different times during the terrible scourge, and with Clyde Sankey, another Lawrence township boy, had assisted in digging a couple of the graves.

Mr. Beck is in Mr. Owens' employ and is bearing up under his terrible cross as bravely as it is possible to do, under such almost unbearable circumstances.

Impressive Potentates.

In no country in the world will one find a more gaudy display in the way of dress than in India. INTERVENTION IN RHINE DISTRICT POSSIBILITY

WASHINGTON, March 25—With dispatches indicating that France will ask for Allied intervention in the "red revolution" in the Rhine district of Germany, Chairman Kahn of the House Military committee planned to call up in the House today his resolution asking the President for a definite statement as to the exact status of the 17,000 troops in the army of occupation. Many members of Congress believe that no action should be taken without its consent, unless of course, some German forces seek to gain control of the Allied zone.

WASHINGTON, March 25—The House today called on President Wilson for a definite statement on the exact status of the 17,000 American troops in Germany. In two minutes it unanimously passed the resolution of Representative Kahn, of California, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee asking that Congress be advised immediately under what conditions and under whose directions the troops can be used.

BAUER HEADS NEW GERMAN CABINET AGREEMENT REACHED IN THE WEST

LONDON, March 25—The new German cabinet was completed last mid-night according to a Berlin dispatch. Gustav Bauer is the new chancellor.

MAYENCE, Germany, March 25—Representatives of the government of President Ebert and the West German insurgents reached a final agreement according to advices here today. The terms of the agreement were that the government agrees to furnish the workers an army charged with maintaining order throughout the German industrial district and all participants in the recent coupe d'etat in Berlin be disarmed.

ESSEN, Westphalia, March 25—Leaders of the German red forces here today announced capture of Wesel, northwest of Essen. The red forces would not agree to an armistice.

U. S. MARINES PUT DOWN QUARREL BETWEEN CHINESE AND POLICEMEN

TOKIO, March 17, Delayed—American marines who landed at Kinking at the request of the British consul killed two Chinese coolies according to a report reaching here. They later withdrew at the request of the local authorities.

The British consul asked the marines to land to quell fighting between Chinese police and coolies according to the dispatch. Kinking is about 130 miles south of Hanko. It is a seaport and has a foreign settlement.

SLIGHT FIRE IN THIRD WARD, WESTMORELAND PRAISES DRY LAW

Fire which started from a defective flue, and which broke out at noon today, damaged the roof of the residence at corner of Clearfield and Weaver streets, which is owned by Frank Urey and occupied by T. N. Fulton and family.

The firemen quickly responded to the alarm, but neighbor Jim Lafferty, formerly chief of the Gobbler's Knob fire department of Fulton county, with several others, hustled up onto the roof and had the flames under control when the fire trucks arrived. Loss about $50.

PURCHASED VALUABLE BUSINESS PROPERTY

Joseph Littman, proprietor of the Ladies' Bazaar, has closed the deal whereby he becomes the owner of the old Clearfield National Bank building on Second street, now occupied by Tobias Bros' grocery and Fisher's confectionery store. The property was purchased from John Dimeling and Dean H. Bloom.

Mr. Littman, who now occupies the old Harder store room, owned by the County National Bank, will remove his store thereto just as soon as the repairs are completed.

GREENSBURG, March 25. (United Press.)—Jail commitments in Westmoreland county during January and February were smaller than any previous period for the past ten years, according to statistics. January 1920 found 31 prisoners admitted, while in 1919 commitments totaling 121 were issued. 33 were imprisoned in February of this year, while 1919 found 104 incarcerated.

PEA-SPROUTS IN CHILD'S NOSE

SUNBURY, March 25. (United Press.)—Suffering for a number of weeks from what seemed to be beatings in the head, three-year old Helen Haip, of this city, when examined a few days ago, was found to be suffering from the sprouts of a pea that had been lodged in the nose. It was believed the pea had been lodged in the child's nose last summer, and when the examination was made, the sprouts had grown one-half and one-quarter inches long.

Mrs. J. M. Roth, of Curwensville, was shopping in our stores yesterday.

REWARD OFFERED FOR DESPOILERS OF DRIVING PARK

Vandals, hoodlums or plain thieves have caused considerable damage and destruction at the Clearfield Park during the past fall and winter and the Park Association is very justly angry over the depredations of these despicable marauders.

They authorize the publication of the following with a view to a possible apprehending of the culprits: $10.00 Reward for information which will make known the person or persons who broke a sash and window lights in the main exhibition building also cut and took away all of the porcelain sockets in the poultry building, also committing nuisances and destroying other property. The park is owned by 135 citizens of Clearfield whose sole aim is to make the grounds and buildings a pleasure place for everybody and any person knowing the above offenders would be doing only a just duty to help preserve the park property.

Clearfield Park Association. Similar depredations have been committed at the park before and the officers of the association are determined to see that justice is meted out to the offenders to the fullest extent of the law if they can be apprehended.

Suspicion points strongly to three young men who will no doubt receive an invitation from a justice of the peace to call and face the music just as soon as a few details in the story in the hands of the association officers can be worked out and corroborated.

Thus far repeated warnings have been given against such things as those enumerated above and now the law's aid will be invoked in order to protect the people's property.

FOX HUNTER FINDS DEAD ELK BUT DEER WINTERED VERY WELL

W. P. Carns, who spent the major portion of the past six weeks at the camp of the Stone Run Hunting and Fishing Club on the headwaters of Stone and Lick Run, came to town the first of the week. He was fox hunting the greater part of the time while in the mountains and managed to get about over a great deal of territory the past two weeks. He says he found that the deer and pheasants got through the long, severe winter in good shape and that the woods in that region are literally alive with deer, and there are more pheasants than have been found in the spring heretofore for several years.

Mr. Carns also ran onto the remains of one of those tragedies incident to a hard winter in the woods. He found the carcass of a cow elk lying on what is known as Lucky Point on Lick Run, just beyond the north boundary of the Kennedy park game reserve. This elk had no doubt been caught on the point by a heavy snow fall and yarded up by herself in a place where there was not sufficient food in sight to last her through the long winter.

The elk in its effort to get food had tramped around in a circle over a considerable distance and had eaten the twigs and brush off as far as she could reach, some of the chewed stumps remaining being of the thickness of a man's wrist. The elk had been reduced to mere skin and bones by her effort to keep alive but was forced to succumb to the rigors of the winter. There was about four feet of snow at this point.

FAREWELL PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wigley were delightfully surprised at their country home near Clover Hill Wednesday evening, when about a hundred young and old people gathered there to bid them a farewell before they retire to their new city home in Clearfield. The evening was most enjoyably spent in dancing and playing games. Enchanting music was furnished by a three piece orchestra. Delicious refreshments were served at a late hour, after which everyone departed for their homes, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Wigley never-ending happiness in their new environment.

Frank Thompson and daughter Miss Helen were shopping in Altoona today.

LITTLE GIRL SERIOUSLY INJURED

Miss Judy, little 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Leslie Wallace, met with a very serious accident shortly after the noon hour today. The little lady was endeavoring to bring her bicycle down from the attic at her home on Pine street, when she slipped and fell, the bicycle tumbling down on top of her.

Little Miss Judy was wearing spectacles and in falling she struck her eye presumably on the bicycle, crushing one of the lenses of her glasses and forcing the broken fragments into her eye.

She was removed at once to the Clearfield Hospital for treatment, and it is feared the eye is so badly injured it will have to be removed.

WILL DELIVER ANNIVERSARY ADDRESS

Deputy Attorney General William I. Swoope went to Wilkensburg today, where he is scheduled to deliver the principal address at the ceremonies incident to the celebration of the Tenth anniversary of Wilkensburg Lodge of Elks.

BREAKING GROUND FOR NEW BRICK PLANT AT BARRETT

A crew of workmen have already begun to prepare the ground for the erection of the big new fire brick yard of the Mt. Union Refractories Company at Barrett, about midway between Woodland and Clearfield.

The Mt. Union people purchased this site for their brick plant early last fall, exclusive mention of which was made in The Progress at the time. The ground was surveyed and plotted but the work of building the plant was suspended during the winter. Now that gentle spring is just around the corner the work of preparing the ground for the starting of work upon the foundations has already been begun.

The new plant, which will make fire brick and shapes exclusively will be 200 feet square and when completed and in operation will employ more than two hundred men and boys. The equipment will be of the latest and best to be procured and this plant will be of very great business advantage to both Clearfield and Woodland.

The site chosen is right at Barrett station on ground purchased from the John M. Troxell estate.

Clearfield people will take more than ordinary interest in the new works from the fact that one of the moving spirits and principal officers in the Mt. Union Refractories company is C. V. Hackman, a native Clearfielder who has made a signal success in the brick business at Mt. Union and elsewhere and he and his business associates, who are careful, successful business men will be gladly welcomed to Clearfield.

The Mt. Union people purchased the Brott farm, immediately adjoining the piece secured from the Troxell heirs and also have large clay and coal holdings in the immediate vicinity and at several other easily accessible points in this region. They have drilled their properties and have everything mapped and plotted.

They expect to operate at once a large body of fire clay near Curwensville and it is said have in contemplation the building of a three or four mile narrow gauge or tramroad from the Morgan Run country to Barrett for the hauling of their clay and coal in that section to the plant.

COMPLAINTS POUR INTO P. S. C. ON PHONE RATE BOOST

HARRISBURG, March 24.—Public hearing on the question of the proposed increase in rates by the Bell Telephone Company will be conducted just as soon as possible after protests have been filed, the Public Service Commission announced Monday night following an executive session at which it discussed informally the proposed rates.

All day protests of informal character arrived in the mails, but so far no formal complaint has been received. Members of the commission frankly say they expect a large number of formal complaints.

It was suggested following the session that if complaints of a formal nature are to be filed that be sent here prior to the effective date for the increases in toll and rental rates, April 21 and May 1 respectively. Otherwise the burden of proof will be placed on the complainants. If the complaints arrive before the effective dates the burden of proof is on the company to show that its rates are equitable and just.

The local protest against the big H. & C. rate jump will be got in shape at the next meeting of council, on Monday, April 5.

Mayor Chase and the different Borough officials have been in conference several times with Borough Solicitor Urey, who is looking into the legal propositions involved and will have the protest in shape for proper action when council meets.

The franchise ordinance under which the Bell Telephone Company operates in Clearfield also restricts the maximum price or charge for telephones to $18 for house phones and $20 for business phones.

Miss Vivian Livingston, who has been visiting her parents, left today for Bucknell University, where she will resume her studies.

DESPERATE BATTLE BEING WAGED TO PUT SUFFRAGE OVER IN DELAWARE

DOVER, Del., March 25—Final action by the Delaware legislature on ratification of Woman's Suffrage was expected today. The suffragists held out hope that the votes would favor the suffrage act. Governor Townsend stated early today he believed the amendment would be ratified. Anti-suffragists were confident the ratification bill would be defeated. Hearings were to be given on both sides at the joint session of the Legislature today United States Senator Sterling of South Dakota and McKellar of Tennessee, were to speak in favor of ratification.

THOS. W. LAWSON CHARGED WITH USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD INVESTORS

BOSTON, March 25—Thomas W. Lawson, a broker and noted financier, was arrested here today. He was charged with violation of the state law governing advertising and the sale of mine stocks. Bail was fixed at $2500. Lawson who is a candidate for delegate at large to the Republican National convention denies the charge. He said he had been warned his "business activities" would be attacked if he did not withdraw from the race.

FIRE DESTROYED 10,792 ACRES GROWING TIMBER

HARRISBURG, March 25.—Forest fires destroyed 10,792 acres of growing timber in Clearfield county last year, according to a report issued here Tuesday by Gifford Pinchot, Commissioner of the Pennsylvania Department of Forestry. The estimated damage to the burned area amounted to $3,199.00, and George H. Wirt, chief forest fire warden, received reports of 36 fires in that territory.

Commissioner Pinchot will wage a determined fight against fires in the forests of Clearfield county this spring. During the dangerous period, the full strength of the State's forest fire-fighting force will be thrown into the woods to protect the timberland. Experiments will be made with wireless telephones to determine their value in summoning help to check fires, Pennsylvania's new forester said.

"The first big job of the Pennsylvania Department of Forestry is to control forest fires. What fires actually burn is a small matter compared to what they prevent from growing. Because they keep between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 acres in Pennsylvania from producing lumber, our people have to import from other states nearly all they use at a yearly cost for freight alone of more than $25,000,000."

LIQUOR DEALERS STILL HOPING

PHILADELPHIA, March 25 (United Press.)—Hope that the constitutional prohibition amendment will be declared void or that Congress will amend the Volstead enforcement act to permit the sale of beer and light wines is still being entertained by liquor dealers here. Fifteen hundred and sixty holders of retail licenses have paid into the city treasury the monthly installment license fee for March. One hundred and seventy-three wholesalers made payment.

GREENSBURG TO FORM HOUSING COMMITTEE

GREENSBURG, March 25. (United Press.)—A stock concern prepared to $500,000 in new homes for workingmen in this city, will be organized by the Rotary Club, in an effort to relieve the congestion. Difficulty in securing workmen for new enterprises here led to the step.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

The pupils of the Junior High School will give an entertainment at the High School Auditorium tomorrow evening, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. The play to be given is entitled "In a Flower Garden," and one hundred and thirty of the pupils will take part. Eighty of the pupils will be costumed to represent a flower garden, while a chorus of fifty voices will assist in the play.

The play was written by Edith M. Burrows, and the music is by W. Rhys Herbert.

The play represents one day in the life of the flowers of the garden. They are awakened by the bird voices, given a drink by the Dew, they play with the sunbeams and then greet the Dawn. Fair Weather comes and brings with her the Little White Clouds. Butterflies visit the flowers and then Noon arrives. While whisper to the flowers of the approach of the Storm Clouds and Rain, the enemies of Fair Weather and the Little White Clouds. The latter are driven away for awhile, but soon return with the Rainbow. Then Sunset and Dark visit the flowers, who are finally lulled to sleep by the Fireflies.

The costumed actors and actresses faithfully portray each character, and with the pleasing characters, combine in an interesting and highly entertaining evening's performance.

The proceeds will be devoted to the Library Fund of Junior High.

READING MAN DIVIDES A MILLION

READING, March 25. (United Press.)—More than a million dollars is divided in the will of Frank C. Smink, late president of the Reading Iron company, filed for probate here today.

The estate consists entirely of personal property. It shows that $999,000 in gold be set aside and securities and the interest be payable to the widow semi-annually. At the time of her demise the money and securities are to be sold and divided among the four children, Harry Smink, Mrs. Augustus Heim, Mrs. J. Bennett Molan, and Mrs. G. Howard Knight.

The only bequests outside of the family are made to Mr. Smink's barber, Harry Gibson, and to his colored barber, Randolph Terry.

DOESN'T NEED ANY LAXATIVES NOW

Mr. Becker says life is a joy, without constipation or stomach trouble.

"I had catarrh of the stomach and head for three years. My stomach was so bad that every time I ate anything sweet, such as fruit or pastry, the burning hot water would run out of my mouth. I took a laxative every night. Since taking Milk's Emulsion, my bowels move regularly. I have now taken ten bottles and have gained 16½ pounds. All my friends remark how fine I am looking, and it seems a pleasure to live again without stomach trouble."—Bert Becker, Miami, Ohio.

Physicians usually make slaves out of their users, and weaken the bowels instead of correcting them. Stomach trouble in many cases is directly due to constipation.

Milk's Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milk's Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose weakness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in restoring and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milk's Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 40c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milk's Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Guaranteed by Stewart's Drug Store.

GIRLS NOT LIARS JUST FIBBERS IS VIEW OF CANON

(By United Press.)
LONDON, March 22. (By Mail.)—The feminine of "liar" is "fibber."

That's why women make better liars than men.

It sounds paradoxical, but Canon Peter Green says it is so. He was addressing the Liverpool Police Court on Juvenile Crime.

"A criminal boy," he said, "is silly. A criminal girl is worse. There is nothing to equal a girl who has got off the right track. Bad boys tell lies which can be spotted, but girls lie connectedly, circumstantially, and in a most interesting and probable manner, which takes infinite knowledge and wisdom to discover. The crimes of boy offenders convince me that their offenses are the outcome of not badness, but silliness and ambivalence."

Canon Green ascribes this difference between boy perverters and girls of the same ilk, to the gentler criticism meted out to the frail sex.

"If a boy at school is found out in a deception he is proclaimed a liar, and boys are trained from early days to despise liars. The term is deemed too harsh for feminine offenders, and the most they are ever found out in is a 'fib.' Girls will continue to fib light-heartedly, with never a blush when they are found out. This becomes a habit. And girls fib so efficiently that before long they are convinced of the truth of their own untruths and will add to a story with limitless imagination, never once pausing to reach a perfectly plausible and possible finish."

Big Eaters Get Kidney Trouble

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your back hurts or bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must constantly guard against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

Rev. Fletcher Biddle has returned from the Harrisburg Methodist Conference. He will preach in the Methodist church on Sunday morning and evening, being his farewell sermons to the people of this charge. He goes to York, where the salary is a much larger one than was paid to him here, the parsonage also is much better and more comfortable than the one he has occupied for the year past. While some of his members objected to his being returned to this charge, the larger proportion of his congregation would have been pleased to have had him returned for another year. During his ministry in this community, Mr. Biddle did excellent church work, and during the winter months conducted one of the most successful revival services held by the Methodist people of this place for years, by which the membership was increased by over a half hundred young people. He is a true minister of the gospel and preached Christ and Him crucified with such force that it "rubbed the fur the wrong way on the backs of some of those who have their names on the membership roll." By his removal at this time Curwensville loses an upright citizen and a conscientious minister of the gospel, while the town of York will be the gainer thereby. His host of friends, inside and outside of his church, join in wishing him the success he so justly deserves in his new field of labor.

Charles Patton has plotted and will have surveyed off in lots shortly, a small tract of land lying this side of the Harry Fleming property near Nantuxton. The location for house building is a good and desirable one, and the lots will be sold at a price within the reach of every laboring man. This is no profiteering scheme, but a straight business proposition to those who desire to build their own homes.

Fred Robison has purchased and added another press to his job office outfit. He already had two presses, but as business has increased to such an extent, he found that it was necessary to add this third piece of machinery. He is working on an order now which calls for a half million van.

There seems to be no ordinance, (if there is it is not enforced) against roller skating and running of coaster wagons on the sidewalks. Every eve the sidewalks are taken up with these two most annoying amusements, much to the detriment of the pedestrians, as the kids seem to have the idea that they must have the right of way when the play is on, and that everybody must keep out of their way. A number of complaints have been made to the proper authorities, but it seems that the policeman does not pay very much attention to putting a stop to the nuisance.

Eggs are on the drop, at least they were yesterday. The writer saw a farmer attempting to get out of a wagon backward, having in one hand a basket which contained six dozen eggs. His foot accidentally caught on the back bar of the wagon and threw him to the sidewalk, and in falling he dropped his precious hen fruit. When the sulphurous smoke had floated skyward, and he examined the contents of his basket, he found that he had saved four whole eggs. We will not vouch for his church membership.

Fred Young, who was taken to the Clearfield Hospital last Friday for an operation, is reported as getting along nicely.

What Curwensville wants, and badly, at that, is one hundred or more new tenement houses. There is not enough houses in town to accommodate our present population. What is going to become of the people who will want to move to Curwensville when those large industries are put in operation?

DEATH OF THE PEACE TREATY

The peace treaty died in the Congressional hospital, as a result of an incompetent diagnosis and a disagreement of doctors. Some considered it best to amputate; some to purge; others would graft, and while the patient was undergoing all manner of rough handling its vitality was exhausted to the extent that it was declared incurable. Now the cause of death is being sought, and the searchers after light are wearing smoked glasses.

All the world, except the United States, is at peace with Germany, but America wanted no European-made contract to keep the peace. As the matter stands today we are not a party to the league of nations or to the peace of the world. On Monday March 22, a bill was introduced into Congress proposing a separate peace between the United States and Germany. That leaves us out of the circle, and to get in we will have to be initiated in due form. The question before the nation today is: "Who is to blame for the defeat of the treaty," and how much has the popularity of Henry Cabot Lodge increased because of his efforts to prevent its ratification?

CIVIL WAR IN GERMANY

Germany, in the throes of Civil war, her capital an armed camp, her food supply menaced, and more than 8,000 of her citizens slain in one week, since the breaking out of the revolt on March 13th, is realizing what it means to instill into the minds of a people the questionable dogmas of bolshevism.

Germany inoculated Russia with a subtle virus that destroyed her armies and ruined her people. Germany is directly responsible for the horrors that have dyed the pages of Russian history with the blood of millions of her misguided people, and that she is now reaping the reward of her perfidy is but a just retribution.

The situation is serious in the extreme and it will not be a surprise to the well-informed to see Germany consuming her own vitals, after the manner of bolshevik Russia.

The higher intelligence of the German people may save them from the horrors that have consumed Russia, but all signs point to a greater bloodshed, and to a greater upheaval among the contending elements of Germanic social economy than has ever before shaken the very foundations of German institutions.

The teacher had spent twenty minutes impressing on her pupils the correct pronunciation of the word "case." The following morning she wanted to find out if the children remembered, so she turned to one little boy suddenly and demanded: "What do you see on the mantelpiece at home, Jackie?" "Father's feet, miss!" came the prompt reply.

The society of Quakers received that name originally because they bade certain magistrates to "tremble at the word of the Lord."

Civilization in Korea.

History for many years H. C. tells us that the people of Korea were among the highest in genuine civilization. About the year 1377 a general by the name of Li built the first iron fleet, composed of wooden circular vessels with iron plates on top, studded with iron teeth. Because of the prosperity of the Korean nation, Japan was extremely jealous, and had therefore brought 700 boats in battle array. However, Li, with his 50 boats, succeeded in inflicting a disastrous defeat upon the Japanese.

Making Chlorophyll.

Chlorophyll is the green coloring matter common to growing plants. Take a handful of parsley and triturate in a mortar with enough alcohol (65 per cent) to cover the mass. Decant the green liquid and allow it to evaporate spontaneously. The chlorophyll remains as an intensely green substance. This may be used to color candies and as cake fillings, says the Electrical Experimenter.

Indian Tea Chests.

The total number of tea chests acquired for the Indian tea chest is between 2,000,000 and 4,000,000. The number required for tea chests is of a very special kind. It must contain no sign that would reveal the tea leaf in which the tea is packed, must be free from any odor, as tea will take this up readily, and must be well seasoned, as the tea is usually hot when packed, and unseasoned wood will warp. Examination has shown that suitable timber exists in India in large quantities.

PITTSBURGH MEN OF AFFAIRS WILL VISIT CLEARFIELD IN MAY

Clearfield will be visited by the trade extension excursionists of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, Wednesday, May 26th, on the golden rule tour which the Pittsburgh business men will make through sixteen cities and towns in central and north-western Pennsylvania. A special Pullman train will arrive here at 12:45 p. m. and will remain one hour and forty-five minutes. President George S. Oliver, of the Chamber of Commerce has appointed prominent business men in Clearfield county, who are non-resident members of the Pittsburgh Chamber, as a special committee to attend the reception in Clearfield.

"The golden rule excursion will be for manufacturers, importers, large wholesale jobbers, bankers and large general agencies," said Chairman Sipe. "This will not be an excursion, mark that. We are not going out with competitors of the business men of our neighboring cities and towns. Neither is this to be a selling expedition. Our trade extension trips never are. We are going first of all, to discuss measures how we can mutually increase business between Pittsburgh and the neighboring communities; how we can serve them best, and how, between us, we may obtain better transportation facilities and build up business for the whole western end of the state. Retailers and those who would be competitors of the business men of the towns to be visited will not have a part in the movement."

"We are much obliged by the courteous and enthusiastic manner in which the committee's announcement has been received," said Vice-Chairman Sam F. Sipe. "We know that Pittsburgh manufacturers and importers would show unusual interest in our nineteenth excursion, but the word that comes to us from the good people of our visiting list in 1920—that is what stirs our hearts and makes us proud of Pittsburgh for Pittsburgh's sake, and for Pittsburgh business men's steadfast adherence to the principles of the golden rule."

The members of the trade extension committee are: Harry W. Neely, Sam F. Sipe, J. Howard Arthur, George A. Buse, Harry Dangelberg, W. J. Golder, G. Brown Hill, F. W. Hughes, W. P. Jend, W. B. Jones, T. L. Rose, William C. Shuck, Thomas E. Walters, C. E. Wilbur and Lawrence C. Woods.

Ladies! Darken
Your Gray Hair

Look years younger! Use Grandmother's recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur and nobody will know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wych's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Where All Could See.

My most embarrassing moment was experienced at an evening church wedding a short time ago. As we were late, most of the seats had been taken, so it was necessary to go almost to the front row. I sat down and calmly removed my hat, when to my mortification my escort asked if I thought I was at the movies. The hat was hurriedly adjusted, but I felt self-conscious during the entire ceremony. — Chicago Tribune.

"ERSTWHILE SUSAN"

A story of a Pennsylvania Dutch settlement---of a modern Cinderella, a scullery maid, the unwilling slave of a widower father and his two loutish sons. THORN BROSTWO PRECIOUS JEWELS—THE
FIRST KISS AND THE FIRST LAUGH

Of all the fine characterizations which marks Constance Binney's screen creation of Barnabette, the forlorn little heroine of "Erstwhile Susan," perhaps the two highest points are reached when she depicts the girl on the occasions of her first kiss and her first laugh. Here are the two rarest and most-to-be-treasured moments in the life of any girl budding into the flower of maturity, and Miss Binney fairly carries the spectator away by the finesse and reality of those moments in "Erstwhile Susan," her first picture as a motion-picture star, and which will be shown at the Liberty Theatre tonight.

The preciousness of these two events was emphasized in the case of Barnabette, since she had lost her mother at birth and the drudgery, imposed upon her by a stern father and two loutish brothers left neither time nor inclination for laughing or kissing.

When her father married again, he chose Juliet Miller—erstwhile Susan—because she seemed properly meek and had a tidy little fortune; but Juliet surprised them all. She became absolute mistress of the house and turned the old order topsy-turvy. Most important of all, however, was the change she effected in Barnabette's life. It was the stepmother who gave Barnabette the first kiss she ever received; it was the stepmother too, who taught Barnabette how to laugh.

Constance Binney brings to the screen not only rare beauty, wisdom, wholesomeness and a high degree of artistry and talent, but what is of far greater value—every charm that has made the American girl pre-eminent throughout the world.

The Chinese were the first to use paper for decorating or covering the walls of rooms. The Dutch are supposed to have introduced the use of wall paper into Europe in the sixteenth century. Trials of Matrimony.

We were stopping at a hotel, while on our honeymoon, and were trying to hide the fact that we were newlyweds. We succeeded quite well until dinner time. Just as we had reached the center of the big dining hall, a tea stood up on her chair and shouted, "Which one is the bride, mamma?" Every one then knew, by my telltale blushing, that it was I—a most embarrassed bride.—Chicago Tribune.

Red Hair Unpopular.

Red hair, however unjustly, is still associated with deceit, and, in Ireland and Scotland, with ill luck as well. In the highlands he who meets a red-haired woman when starting on a journey will be well advised, say the wisemen, to return home and start the journey afresh; and in Ireland red-haired people are supposed to exercise the same baneful influence upon any undertaking.

PAULA'S WAY

By AGNES G. BROGAN.

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

Paula, drawing the curtains of her studio window on a rainy evening, looked down with a wistful smile into the street. Her tall lonely neighbor was striding along through the storm to the house doorway, his soft hat shedding tiny rivulets of water, various paper bundles beneath one arm betokening his bachelor supper.

The girl turned with a sigh to the cozy comfort of her womanly appointed room, the rose-colored light of the shaded lamp, the blazing logs on the hearth—of what had been an old-time mansion.

Now the great house was given over to workers in the world of business, a doctor's office here, a dentist's there, and on this particular high floor, studios of various kinds.

Paula's own particular realm was a "music studio." She had come to the teeming city with high ambition. She would be one of the great musicians of the day—and now little Paula had grown to be content with her lot as humble instructor.

The classes which came at regular hours provided her with this small home and the necessities of life, and though the career of brilliant promise faded, still there was much to bring her joy. She loved every child who climbed the steep stairs to receive her instruction. She loved the old Irish woman who came to clean up mornings. Paula had even a smile for the crotchety janitor.

Every soul in the old building loved Paula, so how could the young illustrator escape who moved in across the hall? After he realized the intense enjoyment the girl's society gave him, Jack Lanse determinedly denied himself from it. Who was he, in his self-imposed poverty, that he might seriously care for any woman? Marriage was as hopeless in his present circumstances as his chosen career was proving to be.

It was just as his shrewd, tiresome old uncle had prophesied—if Jack persisted in depending upon his drawings as a means of livelihood he would be disappointed. Jack was disappointed; but still doggedly determined in his profession. He would be an illustrator. He knew that it was in him, so the proffered place in his uncle's business concern was refused, and Jack himself brought to the cold reality of self-prepared meals in a sky-lighted room.

His room looked unusually cheerless this rainy evening as he flung wide the door, when suddenly an opposite door opened and in the lamplight stood the girl, against whom he had resolved to close his heart.

"Poor Jackie!" she said whimsically, "all wet and cold. You'd better come in by my fire while yours is heating up. And tell me, my Jack today?"

"Thanks," Jack began stiffly. "I will be all right here—"

"You won't," interrupted Paula decidedly, "and I can't afford to let you run the risk of taking cold. Who would look after you if you were sick? No one but me—and I'm too busy."

"Paula, Paula!" murmured Jack tenderly, and smiled as he yielded.

"There might be an opening with Brown's Magazine," he told her, seated before the blazing logs, "if I could keep things going until I get my start. Jove! if only one would give me a part of that luck before he dies. I'm in for the whole thing, you know, and I'm not wishing on dead men. But now—"

Paula nodded understandingly.

"I know," she said, "it's like old Aunt Riah. I'm to be Aunt Riah's heir some day. In the meantime she ignores my existence and I have to play scales for my dinner."

The man rose abruptly.

"Paula," he said, "I'm going to give up this striving for—what I thought I wanted most in the world. You see, I want you now more than any career; I'm going to work."

"Don't," the girl begged of him. "Wait, Jackie, wait—awhile. I can't let you give up such promise. You've got to succeed with your talent."

For days after it was the girl who avoided her lover. The Irish woman told Jack at last that Paula had gone away. She would be back, she said, very soon. Then it was that the unbelievable happened. To Jack came an order for five thousand dollars signed by his uncle's solicitor.

The lawyer stated that the donor wished to remain unknown. Jack chuckled gleefully. This was his uncle's way, he reflected, of silently yielding the point.

Jack could scarcely wait for Paula's return, and when she came, his imperious wooing brushed all objection aside.

They were married in the "musical studio" with the old Irish woman and the grim janitor as witnesses.

When it was all over Paula lifted her happy face to meet the rapt joy of her husband's eyes.

"Dear," she said, "how you will have to forgive me. That money did not come from your uncle. It came—through Aunt Riah's will. She left me her money as she promised, Jackie, and when I went away it was to attend papa's funeral. Your uncle's lawyer and I arranged the matter together."

He seemed to understand that this money of mine would be a favor which your papa had could not so I am. Now you can't give me up, Jackie," Paula said. And Paula was right.

DON'T NEGLECT THE LITTLE ONES

A snuffling, sneezing, coughing child certainly is a reflection upon the parents. To permit a child to suffer from a cold is more than negligence; it is cruel. A cold that hangs on weakens the system and can easily turn into something serious. Mrs. J. S. Pitson, 376 E. L. St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I can't speak too highly of Foley's Honey and Tar. When my little girl has a cold I give her Foley's Honey and Tar and that stops her coughing in a little while. Children like it. It contains no opiates."

SUBJECTS TO TWO BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS

Frank Cimo, who has very ill at the Clearfield Hospital, owes a debt of ever-lasting gratitude to Sam Accoridino, and Mr. Accoridino has set a fine example to mankind in general, by his act of acts of generosity in behalf of Mr. Cimo. A week or so ago it became apparent that Mr. Cimo was weakening and needed new blood. Mr. Accoridino presented himself, with ten others and a blood test was made, which showed that of all the number answering the call, he alone had the proper blood corpuscles to give health and strength to Mr. Cimo. Mr. Accoridino submitted to the blood transfusion and Mr. Cimo immediately showed signs of recovery. Three days later, it was necessary to perform some surgical work on the patient, and Mr. Accoridino again gave of his life's fluid. The condition of Mr. Cimo's health is much improved as a result of Mr. Accoridino's kind and heroic sacrifice. Should Mr. Cimo need more assistance, he will find none of his countrymen ready to respond to his needs.

THE PROBLEM

By JULIA A. ROBINSON.

(Copyright, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Nanette trudged wearily home after her day's work—that is, she went to her small room in a lodging house. She was tired, and a little discouraged, for the day had been a hard one. She stopped on the first floor to pay the rent for the following week, for she might oversleep in the morning and not have time to see the landlady before going to work; then she would run the risk of losing her room. She always cringed when she paid out those precious dollars; it took so long to earn them, and so much hard work! Then it was that the great blow came.

"From now on it'll be 50 cents more a week," announced the landlady blandly, not noticing the shock to the girl. "Everything's gone up," she went on.

Nanette gasped, but dared not say a word. How often she had heard that same story. "Everything's gone up!" dreading the result. Now it had come, and what was she to do? Had not things gone up for her as well? Who was to help her on her expenses? She had no one to fall back upon and demand more money of them to meet the high prices for everything she must buy. It was the way they all did, and she dared not protest.

Wearily the girl paid the extra half dollar and mounted the stairs to her lodgings. Somehow, the little room that she had tried to make beautiful with her own simple bric-a-brac, had lost its attraction for her. It no longer looked homelike. She sank into a chair and burst into tears. Everything looked dark before her. "I don't know what I'm going to do!" she wailed. "I was paying the limit before, I shall have to go without clothes."

How could she pay the rent and have enough to eat to keep her health on her small salary? They would turn her off if she complained. The world was very cruel. What was the use of living, anyway?

An hour later John came. He had not called for a long time and Nanette was afraid he had forgotten. She brightened up, brushed the tears from her face, and went down to meet him. Perhaps he would take her to the movies; that would help her to forget.

But John was not thinking of the movies. They walked out to the river bank. Moonlight streamed across the river. Passers-by chatted gaily, but John was glum and silent, not at all like himself.

"No, I'm not going to the movies," he growled, when Nanette dared the suggestion. "Couldn't stand 'em tonight."

"Why not? What ails you, John? I thought you liked the movies."

"How can you expect a hungry man to enjoy the movies or anything else?" he growled.

"Hungry? Why, John, you're not hungry, really?"

"Yes, I am."

"But didn't you have your supper?"

"What's the matter with you?"

"Matter enough, I should say!" he stormed. "When a man can't get a decent meal anywhere in the city! You pay all creation and don't get what's fit to eat, and not half enough of it. I'm tired of it."

"Oh, John, it's too bad!" she sympathized. "I was down in the dumps, too, when you came because Mrs. Stokes has raised my rent, and everything costs so much. I confess I go hungry myself sometimes. What are we going to do with such prices?"

John whistled. "That's the problem, and a hard one, too!"

They sat silent for a long time, staring at the ground, too much cast down to talk. Suddenly John asked: "Can you make an omelette, Nanette?"

Nanette laughed. "Why, I used to make them at home. I think I could now, if I had fresh eggs, and a stove to cook them on."

"And a little house to put the stove in," he added. "That's just it, Nanette. It's a home we need. What's the use of dragging on in this way, paying out all your money and having nothing to show for it. Let's go to housekeeping, you and I. We'll have a little house somewhere where we can keep a few hens and have a few green things growing to eat. We can save money, have a good time—and have enough to eat at last!"

He had grown enthusiastic, but Nanette was silent. She had never imagined being wooed in quite that way. It seemed very practical and homely, just to be thinking of eating. She wanted love and romance—but then, John was hungry and she pitied him. Yet she would not yield at once. Her woman's coquetry came to her aid.

"Oh, you want me just for your cook, do you?" she retorted. "Can't you hire some one else for a cook, John?"

He saw the fun lurking in her eyes and began to understand. "There! I'm a brute," he cried. "I confess this does not sound much like love-making, but it is and I mean it. Leaving the eating and the practical part out of the question I want you, Nanette. I love you. I've loved you for a long time, but I thought I must wait till I had a pile of money before I told you so. I thought we ought to have enough to begin in style before we got married, but couldn't we begin on just a little, dear? We'd be so much more comfortable—and so happy!" He twinkled. "And have plenty to eat, John!"

Then he caught her in his arms and kissed her, and the romance which meant so much to both began.

Even Wither on, a business man of DuBois, attended to business in town Tuesday.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

THE ADMIRALTY BEAR.

"My name sounds so superior and so high up," said the Admiralty Bear, growling proudly.

"Yes," he continued, "it is almost as high-up a sounding name as any I can think of. It is a good match for any name, such as general or colonel or king or president or premier. And I am glad to tell the animals about it."

The Admiralty bear went on growling and this was what he said:

"There are princes and there are princesses, but they are not nearly so fine as bears. They can talk and chatter, they can laugh and slug, perhaps, but they can't growl."

"Growling is such a superior thing to be able to do. It's far finer than being able to sing."

"Of course there are doubtless creatures who may disagree with me. There are always some creatures who will disagree with one."

"And there are some who will disagree with two or even four."

"But I do not bother about them; I don't pay attention to their opinions. I don't have to with a name like mine."

"These children who come to the zoo aren't named as I am. They're just called Billy and Susy and Johnnie and Teddy and Jane and Sally. They're not called Admiralty Sally, or King Johnnie, or Prince Teddy, or Queen Jane, or Princess Susy, or Premier Billy. No; not a bit of it."

"That's where I have it over them. And by that I mean that's one place where I have something which they haven't. Not that I mind their having things—gracious no. I'm not selfish, but still I am proud of my name."

"That is quite all right too. Many fine creatures are proud of their name. Maybe the family has been famous, maybe there have been fine people in it and the others are so proud that they have the same name."

"Or maybe there have been wise men in the family, or lovely ladies, or angelic children and the others are glad to have the same name."

"That is quite all right, I consider, for I am proud of my family name. I am glad I belong to the great family known as the Admiralty Bear family."

"The reason I have been given such a name is not really such as one might think it would be."

"It is not—no, I will have to admit it—it is not because I am an admiral. That is certainly not the case. No; I'm a bear and I live on land and an admiral is a fine man who commands boats which sail on the sea."

"He doesn't live on the sea or in the sea like a fish but admiral and the sea sound something alike, you must admit."

"The reason I was given my name is because I come from Admiralty Island, far up in Alaska."

"Oh, is that the reason?" asked the Grizzly Bear near by. "I have often wondered why you had such a name."

"Yes, that is the reason, and it is the reason my family have been given the same name," said the Admiralty bear.

"You see," he continued, "we've wandered in other places, we've traveled and all that, but we were first found on that island I told you of far up in Alaska."

"I see," said the Grizzly bear. "We're a fine brown color as far as our fur is concerned, and the fur of a bear is always a pretty important part."

"As important as the clothes of any boy or girl," said the Grizzly bear.

"In fact," said the Admiralty bear, "more important. Our fur is as important to us as a child's fat or thinness or skin or flesh, or whatever you wish to call it, is to the child."

"That's so," laughed the Grizzly bear.

"But what gives me such joy is my name, my fine, superior leader-like sort of a name," ended the Admiralty bear, shaking his head.

Word Is Menacing.

There is something almost menacing in the word "homeless." A homeless dog is such a wretched creature that one would have to be hard-hearted not to pity him. If some of you girls should stop to think of what is implied by the word homeless, you would perhaps be more appreciative of your homes, even though they are modest ones.—Girlie Companion.

They Know.

The teacher was giving the class a natural history lecture on Australia. "There's one animal," she said, "none of you have mentioned. It does not stand up on its legs all the time. It does not walk like other animals, but takes funny little skips. What is it?"

"And the class yelled with one voice: 'Charlie Chaplin.'"

BECK STORY EXAGGERATED

B. T. Owens, who is now located at Weadville, in Elk county, was a Clearfield visitor yesterday. Mr. Owens is Superintendent of the mines at that place, and asked to have corrected the story recently published in the DuBois papers concerning L. C. Beck, of Galtner's Hill. Six of Mr. Beck's children died of diphtheria and the article which appeared in The Progress, stated that he had become insane on account of his bereavement, accentuated because of his isolation and from the fact that he was said to have been forced to dig the graves for all six of the children.

Blake said this story was untrue, and though the Beck children did die of the dread disease, the family was ministered to by the neighbors as best they could, under the circumstances; that he himself had visited the home at different times during the terrible scourge, and with Clyde Sankey, another Lawrence township boy, had assisted in digging a couple of the graves.

Mr. Beck is in Mr. Owens' employ and is bearing up under his terrible cross as bravely as it is possible to do, under such almost unbearable circumstances.
